STORY OF THE BATTLE.

As Told by Men Who Took a Premire: Part In It.

The first connected story of the batle was told to a correspondent of the Chicago Chronicle by the officers of the United States revenue cutter Mc-Gullough last Saturday morning at Hong Kong. The McCullough tock art in the battle and her officers had were almost immediately afterward good opportunity to see the battle hey said that the entire Spanish fleet ci ten ships was completely des royed. During Saturday night the vessels of the American squadron crept inside the bay through a supposed maze f mines and torpedoes. They were ot observed by any of the watchers on the Spanish garrisons until some stray sparks were emitted from th unnel of the diapatch boat McCul

Then s few shots were exchange with the garrison on Corregidor Isl and, but, owing to the darkness, they were ineffective. There was no patro. blished, nor were any starchlights aced at the entrance to Mania Bay. The vessels of the American squdron ever stopped or slowed down until they had assumed a position directly opposite the city of Manila. This was just at day break.

The order of battle assumed by the Spanish first at the beginning of the engagement was with all the small craft inside Cavite harbor, which is proteced by stone and timber break waters and the larger ships manouver is g off Cavite and Manila.

The American battle line was led by the flagship Olympia and the cruiser Raleigh. The Boston, Baltimore, Concord and Petrel and the revenue cutter McCulloch followed The American fleet in easy speed approached the Spanish ships, which were drawn out in two lines, the Reila Maria Cristina, the flagship in the center.

As the dawn broke and the position of the American squadron was discov red the Spanish fleet immediately ogened fire, supported by the Cavite forts. The Spaniards fired the first stot. The challenge was given by the R ina Maria Cristina

The Olympia replied and at once the entire American fleet was in action The Spanish ships did not hesitate in their fire, and the Cavite batteries let loose their heavy guns. The best gun ners in the American fleet manned the most destructive weapons on the suips, and the havce wrought was frightful. The engagement soon became general.

The marksmanship of the Spanish gunners seemed to be wild from the cutset. Meanwhile the main ships of the American equadron were pouring 16. a deadly fire, doing great ex-cution both in the Spanish fleet and in the Cavite fortification on land. The American cruiser Baltimore, at or e period of the engagement, rece.ved the brunt of the enemy's fire and suffered the most of any vessel in too American squadron. From five and incidentally the meeting there of t ten cons o the enemy's shots took a colored company of infantry, called W G Adams, J R Hoffman, W D Robinson frection the Baltimore, but none of together by their captain because of WB Moore, R Ford, John McMaster, J the cofficers or crew was seriously the suggestion that a certain number Nelson, J C C Levy, George Hacke, CP of the Spanish squadron, was the centhe of attack at the beginning of the regard to the matter. It was evident c ion, and under the hot fire poured from the tenor of the resolutions that in on her from the American ships the company was on the war path, she was soon burning from stem to and wanted to get into Cubs at once.

As scon as the Spanish admiral left the Reina Maria Cristina and boarded Isla de Cuba, the fire was directed doubt as to what the company wanted third corporal; L E Tate, first corporal.

The latter mercilessly, every 8 inch to do, but this is what they said in the S Sharpe. Claude Murphy. Clarance Murphy of the said in the S Sharpe. gua on every ship joining those of the first resolution: de gship. The Isla de Cuba was rid of d. After a lew rounds she was put cutof action, and almost before Adn iral Montejo had had time to get his bearing he was driven cut a second

The Sparish cruiser Castilla burst imo flatoes-under the remarkable gunn ry of Dewey's men. The American . amogere then directed a hot fire a inst the batteries. This was a sure to Admiral Montejo, who appar e cly thought himself secure under the gups of the Cavite fortifications: The defenses of Manila and its batt gies, as well as those at Cavite, were lenced and testen to the ground by the rain of shot and shell.

What the Spaniards Say. An official dispatch from the Spangovernor general of the Philipine Surgeon.

b turday night. He says:

he request of the consuls, the enemy will not bombard Manila for the pretent, prov ded I do not open fire upon the enemy's squadron, which is out of ROSTERS OF THE MILITARY COMPArange of our guns. Therefore I cannot fire until they come nearer. "A thousand sailors arrived here yesterday evening from our destroyed quadron, the losses of which number six hundred and eighteen."

Spain Hakes a Poor showing as a Mara-

Not since the battle of Lepanta in 1571 has Spain given a good account of herself in naval warfare. In that battle, with the aid of the Genoese and Venetian fleets administered such a crushing defeat to Turkey that it destroyed the power of the sultan on the seas for all time to come. That was the last of Spain's naval victories. Seventeen years later she sent her boasted Invincible Armada, the greatest collection of warships ever seen. against England. What the storm off the English coast left of this splendid flotilia Francis Drake, the dragon of the sea, disposed of.

In 1704 Spain lost Gibralter and England has held it ever since. Three months after its capture the allied forces of Spain and France tried to retake the fortress and lost 10,000 men in the endeavor. The effort was repeated by Spain alone in 1720 and and again in 1727, both times with fered the loss of 40,000 men. France again aided her in 1782, but the allies were uiterly defeated. Spain since that time has given up hops of recapturing Gibralter.

On July 31, 1718, Spain lost to England twenty-nine battleships at Messina. In 1780 Rodney administered a severe defeat to the Spanish fleet off Cape Vincent, where her warships were recently gathered. A far worse thrashing was given her by that greatest of all sea fighters, Horatio Nelson, at Trafalgar, where with a far inferior fleet he almost annilated the combined naval strength of France and Spain's latest naval defeat before the battle of Manila was in 1866 when Peru, with a few ships, most of them borrowed from Cnili, utterly defeated stronger Spanish fleet. Admiral Peleja, the Spanish commander, was so mortified at the result that he retired to his cabin and blew out his

As he left he said: "Everything is moving along smoothly and well. What we want now is Porto R.c.. "We ought to have that tomorrow" "Will it be as soon as that, senator?' "Yes," was the reply, "probably in a day or two." While refraining from saying what transpired during his brie' interview with the president, his statement that the seizure of Porto Rico is expected to be effected in a day or two, it was thought by his hearers to be significant, having been made immediately after the sanator left the president, though he would not say the president had given him any information.
